Copo de Algodón (Ecos De Tinta / Echoes of Ink) (Spanish Edition) María García Esperón, Marcos Almada Rivero

Copo de Algodón, hija de la princesa de Tacuba y del señor de Tenochtitlan, nació en la era del Quinto Sol, en una ciudad que un pueblo fiero y guerrero levantó en una laguna de reflejos color turquesa. Creía en Tláloc y Huitzilopochtli, y amaba las flores y los cantos. Un día su mundo se agitó, como las aguas al lanzar una piedra... Conoce, a través de su voz, los acontecimientos de su época: las guerras floridas, la matanza de Cholula, la llegada de Hernán Cortés, la muerte de Moctezuma, el sitio de Tenochtitlan... y sumérgete en la historia antigua de México, en la existencia de sus personajes y en la fascinante cosmovisión de este pueblo. Semblanza de la autora: María García Esperón hizo estudios de Ciencias Humanas en el Claustro de Sor Juana y de Letras Clásicas en la UNAM. Es apasionada de las lenguas modernas y antiguas, de la Historia y de la Arqueología. María García Esperón es una de las escritoras mexicanas más prolíficas en el campo de la literatura infantil y juvenil. Su obra ha recibido importantes premios y reconocimientos a nivel nacional e internacional. Más información sobre el libro: Fue seleccionado en el 2010 para formar parte del acervo Libros del Rincón. Comentarios sobre el libro: "Tras el libro, hay una gran documentación y un gran esfuerzo lingüístico, puesto que los datos son precisos, la alusión a los dioses aztecas exacta y la recreación de la vida en las Casas Nuevas, rigurosa; todo aderezado por la inocencia de una niña quien, poco a poco, va perdiendo ese velo propio de la niñez y va entendiendo las cosas de los adultos, no siempre claras, no siempre justas." Anabel Sáiz Ripoll "Estoy segura de que esta novela, como las buenas obras de la LIJ, seducirá a lectores adultos y éstos, en su papel de padres, maestros, bibliotecarios, promotores de lectura, libreros y amigos seguramente la ofrecerán a los niños, a los jóvenes, para leerla con calma, evocando imágenes, hermosas y dulces algunas, descarnadas y crueles otras." María Eugenia Mendoza
